When Jean Yves heard the remix of Benni Bennasi about Madonna celebration, and saw the sexy choreography, he loved the music video. Each music choice is firstly a love story. Jean Yves has to fall in love with the music before using it.

So he decided to use the footage of dancing in night club in Munich to remake his own version of Madonna video. He not only worked on the video but also on the sound itself. He mixed with David Guetta version, made more electro effect to emphasize the robot dance, and shortened it.

This video is made to show that it is possible to take part in a music video. Jean Yves Blondeau has been approached by Jamie Cullum, Pi and music clip directors. When he was in Germany the TV was always switched on MTV and ViVA. The passion for music video is visible in the Jean Yves's video production. In his video you can hear rock, indie, heavy metal, dark electro, drum and bass, trip hop, dub, jazz, pop, electro pop: he is not afraid about styles. Thanks to Vimeo we are very happy to show you this video online worldwide freely. We hope you will enjoy as much as we did when we made it.
